Gould Arrives for Railroad Meeting

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—The annual meeting of the St. Louis Southern railroad was to be held here today. Edwin Gould, chairman of the board, and president of the road, arrived for the meeting last night.

The annual report shows operating revenues for the fiscal year 1915 of $12,224,000—an increase of $1,591,000 over the preceding year; operating expenses of $8,406,000 and a net revenue from operation of $3,817,000. This was a gain of $1,551,000.

American Killed for Using English

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 3.—G. W. Morton, an American employed in railroad offices in Mexico City, was shot and killed by a Carranza colonel recently in the Mexican capital, according to his sister, Mrs. I. H. Rogers of this city, who says that the news was contained in a letter from H. W. Langdon, an American engineer who witnessed the shooting.

The letter, Mrs. Rogers said, stated that Morton and Langdon were seated in a cafe conversing in English when the officer told them that the use of English was forbidden. When Morton asked him when such an order was issued, the letter continued, the officer fired.

ISSUE PEACE OR WAR DEMOCRATS ASSERT

Reed and Marshall Tell Voters They Must Make Choice in November.

PORTAGEVILLE, Mo., Oct. 3.—United States Senator Paul of Missouri in a speech here said that the republican party is becoming the war party of the country.

"Reed is in supreme control of the republican party," he said. "Reed's speech delivered last Saturday at Battle Creek, Mich., is a battle cry. It is a demand for war against Germany which no national honor being can mistake. His words either are the demand of a sincere man who believes our national honor was sacrificed when we failed to go to war and who proposes to wipe out the stain upon our national honor by the stain of blood or his words are the mere vapors of a demagogue who hopes to gain political advantage by arousing a war sentiment with no purpose of actually bringing on a conflict with Germany."

Issue Peace or War.

Paul of St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—Vice President Marshall, speaking here and in Louisville today, said that the issue in the present political campaign is peace or war.

"There is to be peace with Wilson," he said. "There is to be war with Hughes."

The republican party, he said, cannot make an issue of the Madison law because they will not promise to repeal it.

"The right-hour law is on the books," he continued, "and it is going to stay there just as long as the democratic party remains in power."

False, Says Fairbanks.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 3.—Charles Warren Fairbanks, republican candidate for vice president, speaking to the Audubon theater last night, his sixth address of the day, described as "a base utterance" such charges as that made by President Wilson Saturday at Shadow Lawn when he said "the certain prospect of republican success" in November would be the use of force in Mexico and entanglement in this country in the embroilments of the European war.

The suggestion which is now and then heard, Mr. Fairbanks said, "to the effect that republican victory will lead to our entering the European war is a base utterance which the stress of a political campaign does not warrant. Mr. Hughes as president will be careful of peace with honor. He will turn his mind upon observance of our international rights—not as a means of war—but as an aid to peace."

PROBLEMS OF THE HEART

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: (I) I am a girl 15 years of age. I am a high school girl and every one thinks I am very pretty. I have dark brown eyes and hair the same color. My complexion is pretty fair. I am the right height, but I am thin. I am taking beauty and I wish to have a good shape appearance. Can you tell me of anything I can do to improve my weight? I am very straight and have a high chest, but it does not suit me. Some people think I am about the right weight and others do not. Please tell me how to gain weight.

(2) Is there any chance of my getting into the movies? I am very quick and jolly and have also had some moving picture experience. I was in a movie play this fall and I sure had great success. A GREAT FRIEND.

(1) To gain flesh, take plenty of olive oil, eat eggs, butter, cereals and fatty broths, potatoes, beans, corn, carrots and pumpkins, figs, dates, nuts, bananas, underdone beefsteak and roast beef.

Drink plenty of milk, cream and cocoa.

Avoid food that will not digest easily and be careful to masticate thoroughly what you do eat.

Give up pickles, vinegar and all acids.

Exercise freely in the open air, and take plenty of sleep.

Don't fret or worry; this will keep one thin more than anything else. Cultivate an easy-going disposition if you possibly can.

(2) There is chance for anyone to get into the movies if she has ability. It is a work I would not recommend, however, because the life is so hard.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 18 years old. I have a very bad habit of talking too much and I do not always say nice things. I have a very dear boy friend who often does little things I do not like. I have talked about his faults to my friends and what I said got back to him and he is very much hurt. I am certainly sorry, because I value his friendship very much. What shall I do?

Write the boy a note and tell him how sorry you are. Say that you want him to know that you regret the loss of his friendship, but that you feel you deserve to lose it.

In reply to C. G.: I did not receive your letter concerning the widow.

We're Waiting For Your Menu

During the first week a score of women submitted menus for the Times Better Menu Contest.

We want fifty menus next week. Every woman in Oklahoma should be interested in knowing what her neighbor thinks is the best menu she can serve.

Our idea is to please women readers by giving them something that will aid them in their homes. In judging the winners of this contest, the menus will be considered by a cooking expert for palatableness, food value and economy.

A prize of $5 will be awarded for the best menu for a day's meals for two, three, four, five, six, seven and eight people.

One menu will be published daily in the Times. For every menu submitted that is considered good enough to publish, 50 cents will be given to the writer.

Send in your menu to the Better Menu Contest Editor of the Times and remember to write on only one side of the paper.

The A B C Dots in Mexico

By CLIFFORD LEON SHERMAN. (Copyright, 1916, by John N. Wheeler, Inc.)

"Didn't you see anything funny at all on the border?" asked Tommy sleepily. "Well, it was just according to what you call funny," ventured Lingard. "I saw one thing that amused me very much. One day out at camp I saw a strange big cavalry man with a check book in his pocket. He had his sleeves rolled up and was standing by a fence under a tent. He was a very slick man and owned a lot of polo ponies up north."

"What was he doing?" demanded Tommy.

"Well," replied his father, "at the time I saw him he was learning how to make and fit a—"

HEARD AT THE CRIME CLUB

BY FRANK FROEST

This Week's Story:

"Creeping Jimmie"

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

ADHURST, as he took his seat in a second-class smoker, was not enamored of his job. Human nature being what it is—even in police circles—it was a toss-up whether the executive officers of the county constabulary would resent his intrusion, or would loyally co-operate with him. Luckily the case looked simple. Although pre-conceived opinions are apt to be dangerous to a police officer, he had little doubt that Jimmie was the murderer.

It was 5 o'clock on a blazing summer's day when he reached Townsend, and a little group of men moved forward as he descended to the platform. He held out his hand to an erect, solidly looking man he diagnosed as the chief constable.

"May I presume, my name's Adhurst. My people wired you I was coming."

The chief constable shook hands. "Yes, I've just been speaking to Foye on the phone. I'm afraid you've had rather a wasted journey."

"Oh?" Adhurst's tone was interrogative.

"That man you saw—er—Creeping Jimmie, was arrested as he returned to Waterloo. You actually must have passed him on your way down."

Adhurst sucked in his under lip thoughtfully. "That's just like Jimmie," he said. "Unless he absolutely lost his head, I can't imagine him rushing back to London by the next train, and putting his head straightway in the lion's jaw. Were the diamonds found on him—or a weapon?"

"Nothing. But he'd hardly keep them about him in the circumstances. By the way, I was forgetting. Mr. Adhurst—Superintendent Trelway, Inspector Penn. This is Mr. Livey, Mr. Sheet's brother-in-law."

The detective gravely acknowledged the introductions. As he gripped Livey's hand, it lay for a second very cold in his own, and he surprised a keen flicker of surmise in the other's eyes.

"This is a terrible business, Mr. Adhurst. Fortunately I was staying here on a short visit. My sister is naturally much distressed."

"Naturally," agreed Adhurst.

"She asked me to say that, should you care to stay at the Red House during your investigations here, she would be most pleased."

"That is very kind of her. If it is not inconvenient I shall gratefully take advantage of the offer. It is unlikely, however, that I shall be here long. The case seems very straightforward."

He turned to the chief constable. "And now, sir, it might save time if I had a look at the railway carriage in which the body was found."

"Shall I be in the way if I come?"

"No means had he intended to hint that any routine matter had been insufficiently covered. The grizzled superintendent could not repress a sneer. "Perhaps I'm not quite up to Scotland Yard mark, sir. I saw him myself when he examined the body. Mr. Adhurst has seen the statement I took."

Behind his tidy mustache the detective hid a smile. He dropped a friendly hand on the provincial man's shoulder. "We're old hands, both of us, Mr. Trelway," he said genially. "You know how it is. They might ask me up there—he jerked a thumb vaguely over his shoulder to indicate superior authority—why I didn't see the doctor person myself. Just a matter of form that's all. Well, I can't help you any more just now, can I? I'll see the doctor and run along to the Red House for an hour or two. I'll be back in time to meet Grenfell."

He went out. The chief constable turned an inquiring eye on his subordinate. "Now what the devil does he mean?" he demanded.

Trelway shrugged his shoulders. "He was too wise to express an opinion. (To be continued.)"

Oil Useless in Preventing Fog

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Prevention of fog at sea in the vicinity of a vessel cannot be accomplished by the distribution of oil on the surface of the water. Reports of experiments along this line as recommended by the naval hydrographic office indicate that such distribution of oil had no noticeable effect on the fog. Reports from naval vessels along the Atlantic coast and on the Delaware river show oil is useless in diminishing or preventing fog.

For an hour or more, Adhurst kept those officers of the local police who were available hard at work, though he was very careful to pass all orders through the superintendent.

In a dozen or twenty towns along the line, the telephone stirred police inquiries for Creeping Jimmie had not been seen to alight at Townsend. Also there was a young clergyman he had seen in the carriage with the two of them to be found. So far as London was concerned, Adhurst was easy. Grenfell could be relied on to pick up every fact there, from Sheet's office, his solicitors, his bank and any by-line that might suggest itself.

Once a wire interrupted Adhurst. It came from Grenfell. "Bringing our man down 7.40 train," it said. Adhurst passed it across to the chief constable without comment.

Borden raised his eyebrows. "Kind of him to take that trouble," he said. "Why couldn't they have held him till we sent an escort?"

"I reckon," said Adhurst slowly, "that Dicky Grenfell has stumbled across something and wants to put me wise. There's no other reason why he should want to bring the prisoners down. And now, sir, about the doctor? It seems to me that a great deal is going to turn on the medical evidence."

"Eh? What's that? I thought everything was plain enough. You got a statement from the doctor, didn't you, Trelway?"

SCHOOL MAKES BOYS BETTER, SAYS OFFUTT

School days are easy days for Extra Offutt, county probate officer.

The application to reading, writing and arithmetic by his numerous wards keeps them so well occupied most of the time that the duties of the probate officer are considerably lightened.

"Delinquency among the boys of the city falls off 50 percent after the opening of school," Mr. Offutt said. "During holidays it increases."

Boys who have had nothing to do during the vacation months but think of mischief are now busily engaged with school activities. If their studies do not hold their attention, some form of school activity usually holds their interest.

Little News of Florida Storm

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The weather bureau still awaited definite reports today on the disturbance off the east Florida coast. Advances today indicated that its intensity is not known and that it probably is moving north.

Storm warnings were ordered last night from Fort Monroe to Charleston.

Save your hair and beautify it with "DANDERINE"

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff, you cannot have nice, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die, then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?—Adv.
